RETAIL DRUGGISTS DENIED ADMISSION

Pharmacopoeia Convention in Stormy Session.

CHANGES IN CONSTITUTION

Surgeons General of Army and Navy Allowed to Appoint Delegates—All Efforts to Give Membership to Drug Store Men Fail—Secretary Nagel Takes Rap at Trust.

At a stormy session of the ninth decennial Pharmacopoeia convention yesterday afternoon at the Willard, attempts to amend the constitution, giving the National Retail Druggists' Association membership, were defeated by an overwhelming vote.

It was openly avowed the retail druggists' organization is controlled by the "drug trust," and though the Wholesale Druggists' Association was admitted in an amendment, every parliamentary strategy failed in bringing drug store men into the organization.

The constitution was finally amended to allow not only the Surgeon General of both the army and navy to appoint delegates to the conventions, but giving the same privilege to the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists, the Association of State and National Food and Dairy Departments, the National Wholesale Druggists' Association, and the National Dental Association.

Retailers Fight Hard.
Vice President Otto A. Wall, M. D., of St. Louis, who presided, had a taste of what Speaker Cannon has to contend with during the discussion. Champions of the Retail Druggists' Association fought hard for the introduction of their amendment, but the word had gone out that in view of the fact the chief power in the "drug trust" is president of the drug store men, the amendment must be defeated.

Dr. John Marshall, of Philadelphia, introduced the additional clause to the amendment. Chairman Wall declared he was out of order, because such a suggestion should come up under the heading of new business.

After a heated discussion, participated in by a score of physicians and druggists, a motion was made to table Dr. Marshall's clause. The motion to table was defeated by 157 to 158, and a moment later the convention voted almost solidly to reject it entirely.

A proposed amendment, providing that only one delegate be allowed each organization, instead of three, which would have brought the attendance of the next convention down to less than 150 delegates, was also defeated.

Changes in By-Laws.
At the same time, the convention voted to increase the committee on revision of the pharmacopoeia from twenty-five members to fifty. They also made minor changes in the by-laws to help the expedition of business.

Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel took a rap at the "drug trust" in a stirring address at the opening session yesterday morning. He condemned in no uncertain terms what he called the attempts of the "large interests" to gain control of the pharmacopoeia, which, he said, is a pure and scientific body of medical standards.

The remarks elicited tumultuous applause from every delegate not interested in patent medicines, and it was used vigorously as campaign material to block efforts to allow the retail druggists admission to the convention.

Secretary Nagel declared the Pharmacopoeia are doing voluntarily what the government is trying to do to regulate the sale of drugs.

Benefits by Co-operation.
"If the time, talent, and money," he said, "spent attempting to block legislation which was inevitable had been expended in co-operation, how much sooner would the result have been brought about, and how much greater would have been the benefits to all."

Chairman Wall called to order yesterday the first convention in ten years and the first since the passage of the food and drug act. There were more than 300 delegates and as many alternates in attendance. The sessions will extend over to-day, and perhaps to-morrow.

Dr. Horatio C. Wood, president of the Pharmacopoeia, is critically ill at his home in Philadelphia, but he sent his address in printed form, and the picturesque farewell of the retiring executive was received with acclaim.

"It is a striking example," he wrote, "of the payment which in this mad country, America, eminence requires of the men who would gain it, that of the board of trustees, seven in number, three are permanently invalid and four are dead. None of these men was old. Of the five officers elected in 1900, the first vice president and the treasurer are dead and the president is as he is."

Advocates Old Standards.
"It is better to let well enough alone," he added, counseling the Pharmacopoeia to be careful of new experiments and stick to the old and tried standards of medicine.

Minister Calvo, of Costa Rica, gave a graphic account of the translation of the Pharmacopoeia into Spanish, and the benefits it has wrought in the drug standard of the South American countries and other Spanish-American territories. He paid a graceful compliment to the convention and the efficiency of its publication.

A meeting of the nominating committee was held last night. Officers for the ensuing year, a board of trustees, and a revision committee of fifty members was nominated. The nominations will be presented to the convention this morning. The committee refused to make them public last night.

Services for Mrs. F. J. D. Smith.
Funeral services for Mrs. Frances Josephine Deputy Smith, who died Sunday at her apartments in the Bradlock, were held yesterday afternoon at Oak Hill Cemetery Chapel, Rev. William D. Moss, pastor of the Kalamazoo Presbyterian Church, officiating.

Plan Services for Willard.
Services in memory of Henry A. Willard, former vice president of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, will be held at the Church of Our Father, Thirtieth and L streets northwest, next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. The services will be held under the direction of the Oldest Inhabitants.

HICHBORN WILL PROBATED.

The Washington Loan and Trust Company, the executor of the will of Admiral Philip Hichborn, yesterday filed a petition for the probate of the will, dated April 14, 1909, also stating the value of the estate to be $90,000.

His jewelry and household goods are left to the widow, Mrs. Jennie Mary Hichborn, and $10,000 each to his brother, Henry G. Hichborn, his sister, Mrs. Frances Hopkins, and a niece, Miss Ellen F. Hadley.

The remaining estate is to be converted into cash, one-third to go to the widow, one-third to his daughter, Mrs. Martha Pearsall, and the remainder to his son, Philip S. Hichborn.

WAREHOUSE GRANTED SIDING.

Commissioners Disagree with Residents on North Capitol Street.

The Commissioners yesterday favorably reported the bill to construct an overhead siding between a warehouse on the block bounded by North Capitol, L, M, and First streets northeast and the railroad tracks near by. In a hearing recently it was asserted that an overhead connection would be against the best interests of the community.

To the objection that this section of the city should be kept for residence purposes, the Commissioners reply that the development of the block shows there will be few, if any, residences on it, and that business interests predominate.

However, they suggest that a restriction in the form of a clause providing the siding shall not be extended further west across First street than a point 250 feet east of the east line of North Capitol street.

PUPIL'S TEETH EXAMINED.

The inspection is being done at the request of Washington dentists, who were recently granted permission by the school board. No child is forced to be examined if parents object.

FATHER OF RURAL DELIVERY RESIGNS

H. Conquest Clarke in Postal Service Since 1897.

H. Conquest Clarke has tendered his resignation as assistant superintendent of the division of rural delivery, bureau of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, effective June 1 next. Mr. Clarke will be succeeded by Robert H. Prender, who has for several years been chief clerk to the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General. Postmaster General Hitchcock has designated Robert M. Pindell, of Maryland, who has for some time been appointment clerk in the Census Bureau, as successor to Mr. Prender, and Mr. Pindell will assume his new duties on June 1.

Respecting Mr. Clarke's proposed voluntary retirement, Assistant Postmaster General De Graw, with whom he has been associated for many years, referred to him as a most highly appreciated and efficient officer, and said:

Filled Posts Successfully.
"Mr. Clarke's connection with rural delivery has been coincident with its growth and development. He has successfully filled the positions of special agent, chief special agent, division superintendent, and superintendent. When he entered the service in 1897 the office force assigned to rural delivery consisted of himself and two clerks; the field work was carried on by two special agents and forty-four rural carriers, with an appropriation of only $50,000 available for the development of the service. The clerical force now engaged in the Post-office Department on rural delivery work is 1,000; the field force is 1,000; there are 4,500 rural carriers in service on the first of April last, while the appropriation for the maintenance and extension of the service last year was $7,300,000."

"Prior to 1897 no favorable mention of the possibilities of rural delivery had been made in any official report since the abandonment of Postmaster General Vannaman's plan of village delivery. Mr. Clarke, as special agent, prepared and laid before Postmaster General Graw an abstract of the reports received in regard to the forty-four original routes, and submitted that the results obtained proved conclusively that the experimental service had rendered benefits far in excess of the expenditure involved and that under wise restrictions it could be continued and extended with great advantage to the postal service, or later the United States would have to follow the lead of the more densely populated countries associated with it in the Universal Postal Union and establish a delivery service over all the settled portions of its vast domain."

Appropriation Was Raised.
"The Postmaster General adopted this report and laid it before Congress, which responded by raising the appropriation for this purpose to $150,000 for the next year, $400,000 for the year after, and thereafter by successive increases ranging from one to four millions, each year extended the service till the present proportions have been reached."

"In all the subsequent development and in shaping the regulations for the early government of the service Mr. Clarke took an active part, so that he has been regarded by his associates as practically the father of the rural delivery service."

Oldest Negro Resident Buried.
Funeral services for Joseph Shorter, one of the oldest negro residents of the District, who died Saturday last, were held yesterday afternoon at the family residence, 1181 New Hampshire avenue, Rev. Ross, pastor of Metropolitan A. M. E. Church, officiating. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery.
